Information Booklet

A musical history

The Queen Elisabeth Music Chapel is a musical laboratory where young classical musicians from around the world come to perfect their art with internationally renowned masters. On the one hand, the peaceful location offers an ideal atmosphere for musical concentration, while on the other hand, the constant activity of the Music Chapel provides the musicians with a very large number of opportunities to perform and to meet the audience, whether in-house, in Belgium or around the world. A unique place of excellence, set in the forest, where each door opens onto a wonderful talent.

Built by the architect Yvan Renchon and inaugurated by Queen Elisabeth in 1939, the Listed Building is a showpiece of Art Deco. It has retained its own character over the years, thanks to the countless musicians that have given their heart and soul between its walls.

In January 2015 Queen Paola cut the ribbon of the Modern Building: 2100 m² including 20 housing studios, 2 large rehearsal rooms, a concert hall and a restaurant, giving new impetus to the artistic standing of the Music Chapel.
